Ted Mystery Gets Inquest

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (AP) — An inquest begins Sept. 3 into the death of Miss Mary Jo Kopechne in Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's auto accident last month. Dist. Atty. Edmund Dinis, who ordered the inquest, said Friday he has "no intention at this time" of calling Kennedy to testify but that the possibility would not be ruled out. Dinis said he expects to call about 15 witnesses in all, although he did not identify them. He has said the purpose of the inquest is to determine the cause of the young blonde secretary's death and the circumstances surrounding it. The announcement of the Sept. 3 starting date was made by District Court Judge James A. Boyle, who will preside at the proceedings in this island resort town. He said it will be open to news coverage.

The district attorney had indicated earlier that Kennedy would be called to testify. The 37-year-old Massachusetts Democrat recently canceled a three-week trip to Europe so he could be available if his testimony was deemed necessary. In a related development, Dinis' top aide, Asst. Dist. Atty. Armond Fernandez Jr., was in Pennsylvania Friday. Miss Kopechne is buried in Plymouth, Pa. A spokesman for Dinis' office in New Bedford said Fernandez had gone to Pennsylvania to pick up his wife and children. The spokesman said they were visiting relatives there. But the spokesman said Fernandez probably would take the time to look up Pennsylvania law as it applies to exhumations and autopsies.

Welfare Revamp Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon proposed Friday night to scrap the present welfare system and replace it with fixed basic federal incomes for every poor family as the key part of a sweeping program to cost $4 billion more a year. The President called also for a $1-billion start on sharing federal tax revenues with states, a dramatic shift of manpower programs from Washington to state and local control, and reorganization of the antipoverty agency for almost total emphasis on experimentation. If implemented by Congress, his proposals would more than double the number of welfare recipients to 22.4 million and add some $4 billion to present federal outlays of $4.7 billion although this boost would be partially offset by some reduction in state costs. "I propose that the federal government build a foundation under the income of every American family with dependent children that cannot care for itself—wherever in America that family may live," Nixon said in broadcasting to the nation his most comprehensive domestic policy outline. He traced what is expected to be the core of his domestic program for the coming three years. A start in requests for specific legislation is to come next week in three messages to Congress. The President wants the present dependent children's aid program absorbed into a new system that would subsidize poor families regardless of whether the household head has a job. A family of four anywhere in the nation would receive a minimum federal payment of $1,600 a year. Under present regulations, a family with the head of household working fulltime is ineligible for welfare. Nixon said his family program is not a guaranteed income in the widely understood sense because it would require all able-bodied adult recipients except mothers with children under age six "to accept work or training provided suitable jobs are available either locally or at some distance if transportation is provided." Work incentives would include free day-care centers for children, a $30 a month bonus for those in job-training programs and the retention of the first $60 a month of earnings without benefit reductions. Beyond the first $60, benefits would be reduced by 50 cents for each $1 earned. The President said the total welfare savings to all states under his program would be $735.8 million a year with all states benefiting. He said his program "aims at ending the unfairness in a system that has become unfair to the welfare recipient, unfair to the working poor, and unfair to the taxpayer." The President described the present system as a colossal failure that "breaks up homes often penalizes work... and robs recipients of dignity." Benefit levels are now grossly unequal, ranging from $263 in one state for a family of four to $39 in another, the President said. Officials later said these two extremes are in New Jersey and Mississippi. "So great an inequality is wrong," he said. "No child is 'worth' more in one state than another." The present system also drives fathers to desert their families so their children can receive aid, the President said. The President described his new plan this way: "For a family of four now on welfare, with no outside income, the basic federal payment would be $1,600 a year. States could add to that amount and most would do so. "In no case would anyone's present level of benefits be lowered. At the same time, the foundation would be one on which the family itself would build," he said. A family of four, for example, could remain eligible for aid until its over-all income reached $3,920 a year under the plan. To encourage outside earnings, wages of up to $60 a month would result in no reduction in aid. Above that, benefits would be cut only 50 cents for each dollar earned. "By the same token, a family head already employed at low wages could get a family assistance supplement," the President said. "A family of five in which a father earns $2,000 a year—which is the hard fact of life for many families—would get family assistance payments of $1,260 for a total income of $3,260." He added that a family of seven earning $3,000 a year could have its income raised to $4,360 under his program. Nixon made a sharp distinction between a guaranteed income, which he opposes, and his family assistance plan. The President called for a small-scale start in 1971 on sharing revenues with hard-pressed states and cities. He wants Congress to provide $500 million in his fiscal 1971 budget for revenue sharing, with the payments to start when the fis-

U.S. Expels Soviet Spy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department announced Friday the expulsion on spy charges of a Soviet diplomat long stationed at the United Nations. Moscow retaliated by ousting an American embassy officer. Secrecy surrounded the case against the expelled Russian, 44-year-old Igor L. Andreyev. State Department officials indicated that on security grounds they would give out no more than the bare announcement. The American ordered out by Moscow is Milton Kovner, 39, listed as an economic counselor with the U.S. embassy there. Kovner, who arrived on his Moscow assignment a couple of months ago, was previously in the State Department intelligence section. But the department said the Soviets made clear they were ordering him out only in retaliation, not for any improper activities. He is to leave Moscow Tuesday. As for Andreyev, a counselor officer at the Soviet U.N. mission who has been in the United States since 1958, except in 1963-65, a State Department spokesman said he "was engaged in intelligence acquisition activities in New York."

The spokesman, press officer Carl Barch, refused to give any particulars about Andreyev's alleged espionage activities except to say they constituted "abuse" of the arrangements under which the United States allows the entry of foreign diplomats to serve at the U.N. Andreyev left the United States on July 22 after U.S. representatives brought the complaint against him to the office of U.N. Secretary-General U Thant and to the Soviet mission at the U.N. July 14, Barch said. The Soviets denied the charges against him. The tit-for-tat expulsions were the latest in a long series dating back to the Cold War days after World War II. The most recent publicized case was two years ago, when Washington ousted a Soviet embassy diplomat and a Soviet U.N. mission counselor officer and Moscow expelled a couple of American diplomats. In the 1967 affair, two U.S. sergeants were charged with having conspired to obtain national defense information for the Russians. There was no word from State Department officials of any plan to prosecute Americans in the newest case. Informed U.S. sources portrayed Andreyev as having been active in espionage work along with his U.N. mission duties, but as less than a kingly spy. They indicated the U.S. government had originally sought to arrange for his quiet departure from this country, but that the Soviets refused. Diplomatic immunity bars domestic prosecution of a foreign envoy.

Powell Favoritism Reversed By Court

CHICAGO (AP) — The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ordered Secretary of State Paul Powell Friday to draw lots to determine candidates' positions on ballots for election of delegates to the Illinois Constitutional Convention. The appellate court reversed a U.S. District Court dismissal of a suit accusing Powell of political favoritism, and ordered Powell not to certify the listing of candidates as he had prepared them. At stake were top listings which many politicians consider worth 10 per cent of the votes cast in an election. The ruling was handed down in an appeal by an 11th Senatorial District candidate, Bernard Weisberg, from Judge Joseph Sam Perry's decision not to interfere with Powell's method. Powell testified in U.S. District Court that he selected from a special mail delivery July 7 the nominating petitions of persons whose names he recognized and gave them favored treatment. Weisberg challenged not only Powell's favoritism among petitions received in the same mailing, but his giving preferred treatment to mailed petitions over those of candidates waiting at his office door. Illinois law stipulates that candidates shall be listed in the order their petitions arrive at the secretary of state's office. It does not say what should be done when petitions arrive at the same time. Powell contended that he used "common, ordinary horse sense" in following a procedure he said has been common practice for 50 years. Two delegates from each of 58 senatorial districts will be elected Nov. 18 to attend the Constitutional Convention meeting in Springfield Dec. 8. In districts where more than four candidates file, a primary election Sept. 23 will cut the field to four. The appeals court ordered Powell to determine the number of candidates in each district where there is a contest and to follow this procedure in placing the names: — Numbers shall first be drawn for candidates whose petitions arrived in the same mail. Their names shall be placed in accordance with the number drawn. — Names of candidates waiting in line on that day shall then be placed in open spots on the list, in the order they were waiting in line.

Russ Launch Moon Craft

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union sent another unmanned spacecraft on a moon mission Friday but there was no hint it would make a landing. Tass, the official news agency, said the spacecraft Zond 7 was launched to study the moon and space near it, to take lunar photographs and to test "improved on-board systems and the design of the rocket-space complex." The last Soviet moon shot was Luna 15, another unmanned probe which crashed on the moon July 21, just before the U.S. Apollo astronauts took off from their lunar landing site on the Sea of Tranquility. There had been speculation Luna 15's mission was to scoop up moon rock and make an automatic return to earth. The announcement that Zond 7 would test the "rocket-space complex," a new phrase in Soviet space terminology, set off speculation something new was being attempted. Zond 5 and Zond 6 last year made round-trips to the moon. If usual Soviet practice is followed, no indication of the Zond 7 mission will be given until after it reaches the area of the moon. That will happen Monday night if the flight takes the usual 3½ days. Soviet space authorities revealed last November that the Zonds were tests of "a manned spaceship that will be sent to the moon." But there was never any speculation why a manned flight was not attempted after the success of Zond 5 and Zond 6, which seemed to give the Soviet Union the chance to be first at getting a man in the lunar area. Presumably the spaceships experienced difficulties that were never publicly admitted. Zond 7 could be a test to see that these have been eliminated. The spaceship was called an "automatic station" in the announcement. This is the standard Soviet terminology to indicate no human beings are on board. U.S. space experts said the Zonds resemble the Soyuz spaceships which the Soviet Union has used since 1967 in its manned space flights. They are apparently much larger and more sophisticated than the Lunas.

Vietnam Fighting Renewed

SAIGON (AP) — Fighting in South Vietnam in the past 24 hours rose to its highest pitch and brought the heaviest casualties since the battle of the lull began nearly two months ago. U.S. officers said Friday, however, they still were uncertain whether the enemy has opened a new drive that has been expected in August. In the period since early Thursday, allied spokesmen listed 147 enemy troops and 14 American and 17 South Vietnamese soldiers killed in more significant actions ranging from the demilitarized zone in the north to the Saigon area. And 164 Americans and 51 South Vietnamese were wounded. They said this was the heaviest 24-hour casualty toll since relative quiet fell over the battlefields June 18. Military officials pointed out these figures did not include casualties from scores of skirmishes that go unreported in daily communiqués. A U.S. Command spokesman said the increased ground fighting "is not necessarily an indication of increased enemy-initiated activity." "We are catching him on sweeps," he added. "We may be catching him before he gets ready to do something. Several of the actions were initiated by allied forces. I'd hate to characterize it as increased enemy-initiated action. It's too early to be specific about the significance." This estimate was echoed by a U.S. Marine spokesman in the north, where the heaviest fighting anywhere broke out Thursday near the demilitarized zone dividing North and South Vietnam. The Marine spokesman said the fighting resulted from allied sweeps rather than enemy initiative, adding: "It's something like you turn a corner and—whammo—you find something around that corner." The U.S. Command in Saigon said 2,890 American helicopters now have been lost in the war. In Saigon, the government announced a shakeup in the military command, replacing commanders of the 5th and 18th divisions, which U.S. officers considered the worst in the army. Maj. Gen. Nguyen Van Hieu, commander of a division in the central highlands, was named to command the 5th and Brig. Gen. Lam Quang Tho, who commanded an infantry school near Saigon, took over the 18th. U.S. officers said privately they welcomed the changes. In all, there were 12 transfers or promotions designed to strengthen the command structure and to silence criticism that too many political generals hold important posts.

Jordan Bombed Israeli Jets Strike Again

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Israeli jets attacked inside Jordan Friday for the third time in three days, bombing Jordanian rocket positions, an Israeli military spokesman said. He said the attack was in reprisal for the rocket attack Thursday night on an Israeli potash works at Sodom on the Dead Sea. The planes encountered light antiaircraft fire in the 35-minute attack but all managed to return safely to their base, the spokesman said. Before the air attack, Arab guerrillas in the Jordanian capital, Amman, claimed they launched raids on three Israeli civilian and military outposts during the night, killing 60 Israelis. The Palestine Armed Struggle Command in Amman said "several hundred" guerrillas were involved in the raids in the northern Jordan Valley. It claimed four Israeli tanks and other army vehicles were destroyed in the three-hour raid across the Israeli-Jordanian cease-fire line. In Tel Aviv, an army spokesman denied the claims, which he described as "the fruit of imagination from beginning to end." The Israelis did say that a border kibbutz south of the Sea of Galilee came under Arab bazooka fire early Friday and that one Israeli woman was injured. Israeli forces exchanged fire with the Arab guerrillas, the spokesman said. A bus ran over an explosive charge in the same area Thursday, killing 2 and wounding 12 Israelis and Israeli jets hit back at Arab guerrilla positions in Jordan in retaliation. Action appears to have swung from the western Suez Canal front with Egypt to the eastern Israeli-Jordanian front. Israeli political circles fear a major escalation along the eastern border where 50,000 Syrian and Iraqi troops are reported dug in with the Jordanians. In London, the ambassadors of Jordan and Egypt called on the British Foreign Office Friday to present the common view of all Arab diplomatic missions in London on Israel's latest policy statement about security borders. Qualified sources said the Arab ambassadors protested the view taken last weekend in the election platform of Israel's ruling Labor party that the River Jordan should be Israel's eastern security border and that Israel should retain the Golan Heights of Syria and the Gaza Strip of Egypt.

Social Reform And Peace Pledged By Premier Rumor

ROME (AP) — Premier Mariano Rumor pledged his new minority government Friday to limited social reform and the maintenance of civil peace. He also promised continued support for an Atlantic Alliance with strictly defined aims and for an economically and politically united Europe. Rumor outlined his Christian Democrat Cabinet's program in separate 40-minute speeches to the Chamber of Deputies and the Senate, preparatory to debates and votes of confidence in both houses. The votes, which he is virtually assured of winning because of the promised backing of Socialists, will come within five days. Rumor's program was identical with that of his center-left coalition government which collapsed last month. The difference was that Rumor virtually admitted that it was not attainable in its entirety. Alluding to the government's tacit commitment to resign well within a year to allow revival of the center-left, Rumor said: "The Government does not pretend to want to do more than it thinks it can do." Unless forthcoming regional and local elections are postponed, the government's life could be over by October or November. Right after the votes of confidence, Parliament will go on vacation until late September. As expected, Rumor gave precedence in his domestic program to a "bill of rights" for workers, university and high school reform, the financing of a new system of regional government, implementation of an economic plan, revamping of civil service categories and salaries, and renegotiation of Italy's concordat with the Vatican. He also pledged efforts to mitigate the differences in wealth between north and south Italy, to cut the flow of capital out of the country, and to keep down prices, especially for housing.

Sen. Smith Shapes Crucial Hours Of ABM Battle

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — After all the days of technical testimony, the weeks of debate, it was the courtship of Margaret Chase Smith which shaped the crucial hours of the Senate's Safeguard battle.

It made no difference that the silver-haired senator from Maine voted with one set of senators against the administration missile defense plan, then switched sides in a second vote. The opposition lost both, and the administration program was approved by the one-vote margin President Nixon himself had forecast as a possibility some five months ago.

Sen. Smith, senior Republican on the Senate Armed Services Committee, came to the climactic session with an amendment designed to block all spending for the Safeguard system.

She said she had no confidence in it, and couldn't justify spending money even for research.

Advocates of the system were certain that amendment would be defeated. And they forecast that if it was, Mrs. Smith would vote against the major obstacle to the system, an amendment to bar deployment but permit continued research and testing of Safeguard.

They were right, twice.

But they had some anxious moments. At the outset, advocates and foes of Safeguard took turns praising Mrs. Smith.

But Safeguard proponents, who had discounted her original amendment, reacted with concern when Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., proposed blending it with the legislation which was the chief vehicle of Safeguard foes.

His suggestion: alter the Smith amendment to permit continued research and development work on an anti-ballistic missile, just so the Safeguard wasn't the system involved.

Mrs. Smith agreed, but everyone else had to agree, too, in order to make the change in her amendment.

A bit off balance at the prospect of a new alliance, Safeguard proponents quickly objected to any change.

Then came a calculated delay. Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., the majority leader, suggested the Senate take a break from business and welcome Horace M. King, speaker of Great Britain's House of Commons.

Mansfield then suggested a call of the roll, a common delaying tactic, to permit senators to shake hands with the speaker.

While that was going on, Mansfield and a bloc of ABM foes conferred with Mrs. Smith. Among them: Sens. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., sponsor of what had been the key opposition amendment.

No TV In South Africa

Further insight into the repressive, fearful nature of the South African government can be drawn from the news that South Africans were not able to watch the Apollo 11 flight on television. A look at this historic event as it occurred was denied them because the South African government does not permit television.

The descriptive words in the first sentence above—"repressive, fearful"—have a direct bearing on this circumstance. There is repression in the issuance of such a decree from Johannesburg. And the fact that the government forbids television underscores its fearfulness—its concern lest citizens see something on TV that might make them aware of things the government prefers to keep from them.

It would be highly embarrassing to Johannesburg, for example, were South Africans to witness a broadcast of United Nations debate on the racist policies of their government. If blacks and "coloreds" were to see such debate, smoldering unrest over apartheid might break into open violence. The revelation that most of the world scorns and condemns apartheid might also arouse disturbing thoughts even among some whites who ostensibly benefit by this system.

The South African government defends its opposition to television on the grounds—ridiculous in this relatively very prosperous nation—that it would be too expensive. Its real reasons are quite different: it feels that it dare not permit its citizens, white or black, this window on the world.

Meal Time In Space

The method of feeding astronauts under highly specialized conditions is one of the more intriguing human aspects of space flight. The food supply for the Apollo 11 mission had to meet stringent requirements as to quality, bulk and preservability. The problems this presented, and others, were ingeniously solved.

Those who solved them did not have to build from the ground up. For one thing, they had the benefit of the Army's ration development program, which gave them a head start on freeze-drying of foods. So far as some of the problems were concerned, however, they were on their own.

The Apollo space allotted to a week's rations for one man was about as big as three shoe boxes. The specifications called for food that was highly nutritious, tasty, with a minimum of residue. It had to contain no chunks that could not pass through a three-quarter inch tube.

The demand was for meals that would remain stable for six months at 100 degrees, and that could be rehydrated with warm water in a few minutes—with no drips or crumbs to pollute the atmosphere. Wrappings had to be flexible, moisture-proof, impervious to cabin pressure. One last touch: packages were fitted with a strip of fastening material to keep them from floating away from a hungry astronaut.

As with other things, it's easy when you know how. The people responsible for feeding the astronauts knew how.

Here To There, And Back

The creaky old observation that the United States is a nation on wheels springs to new life these summer vacation days. The sight of license plates from all over the Union becomes commonplace—especially so in areas that make a bid for the tourist trade, but in varying degree almost everywhere.

Family vacation trips are increasingly common in European countries, too, but most of them cover much less ground. Over here, trips covering several thousand miles are not much out of the ordinary. Indeed, sometimes one gets the impression that mileage is an end in itself: lots of people from the East head for the Far West, Westerners tend to move in the opposite direction, and so on.

Nixon Encourages Aides To Fight For Convictions

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA)—President Nixon's approach has seemed all the more confusing because he has encouraged the most furious type of debating within his administration and within the White House itself.

He has brought in men he considered to be the best, and held on to men he wanted from the Johnson and Kennedy administrations, whether they were "liberals" or "conservatives."

This has led to the most furious inner circle arguments and infighting over issues.

Nixon is an attorney and believes thoroughly in the adversary (or protagonist) system of law as practiced in U.S. courts. Under this system, each case is acted on separately (considering precedents) and each side battles for what it believes with all its might.

This type of adversary "fighting" is now going on in the White House, the Pentagon, the Department of State, the Small Business Administration, the Department of Commerce, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and in a number of other departments and agencies.

Each side is leaking—or openly stating—its views and its attitudes to the press.

It is known that in the White House the outlook of some advisers is so different from that of other advisers they work with as equals, superiors or assistants, that they quite openly do not trust each other. Nevertheless, a man of one outlook, when tied up on some task, may be represented at key meetings by an assistant whose philosophical views are diametrically opposite from his own. This is known, and approved of, by the President.

Nixon believes this system works in the courts of the United States. He sees no reason why it will not work to advantage in the White House, in the cabinet and in the relations between his administration and Congress.

Within the White House and the cabinet, Nixon likes to listen to the arguments, let them boil on, sometimes for a long time. Then he likes to get into a "back room" and sift these things out and then make a decision.

From the standpoint of democracy, this is excellent. But it sometimes makes it very difficult, indeed, to determine where the administration is heading.

The public confusion is all the greater because Nixon, unlike his two predecessors, has not whipped his cabinet and subcabinet men into line on what they say publicly. He has not insisted that they speak with one voice. He has allowed them to go their own ways even when they disagree with him, both before and after decisions have been made.

At the State Department and in the Pentagon, for example, there is less fear of speaking out these days and the public sees Secretary of State William Rogers and Defense Secretary Melvin Laird apparently in open disagreement on issues of vital national importance.

Take the case of Dr. John H. Knowles, who was HEW Secretary Robert Finch's candidate for the nation's top health post. When Knowles was not nominated, the cry was that "conservatives" had won over the "liberals." But then Nixon nominated Dr. Roger O. Egeberg for the slot. Egeberg's record, it was widely reported, is similar to that of Knowles. So there was no swing and no ideological victory. What Nixon did is what all presidents do. They give the right of veto in appointments to the congressional leaders of their own party. Most of them do it more quietly and with greater finesse. Nixon let the matter be argued out to the bitter end.

After careful study and numerous interviews with men close to the President, what can be said with assurance is that in these White House and cabinet debates, men who were called conservatives will win one day and men called liberals will win on another issue the next.

Each issue, as in the courts, will be decided on a case-by-case method.

This is why men find it so difficult to classify what the Nixon administration is. It is why that confusion will likely continue.

Ann Landers: In-laws Cruelty Only Hurts Child

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I married eight years ago. I was nearly three months pregnant. We've had a happy marriage and I've tried to be kind to my in-laws although they never had any use for me and they let me know it.

We now have three children and are proud of them all. My in-laws moved out of the state five years ago. They send the two younger children beautiful birthday gifts every year and ignore the oldest child's birthday completely. The message is clear and I resent it. The child is old enough to ask why her grandparents never send her a birthday gift. I can no longer say, "They forgot."

Although my in-laws dislike me intensely, I have managed to keep things peaceful and I'd hate to create a rift in the family. At the same time I feel they are being cruel to our child and I can't bear it. What should I do?—No Happy Birthday

Dear No: Your husband (not you) should write to his parents and tell them the oldest child can't understand why Grandma and Grandpa keep forgetting her birthday. Ask them to please send her a card if they don't wish to send a gift. If they fail to comply with his request next year, return the younger children's birthday gifts, unopened.

Dear Ann Landers: I am married to a wonderful man and consider myself extremely fortunate. He has dozens of marvelous qualities but as a lover he is a failure.

I try to fake it but no male as perceptive and sensitive as he can be fooled. He knows my lovemaking is the "duty brand."

It kills me when my husband lies beside me at night, silent and pensive. I'm sure he is brooding over his inadequacy. I don't go along with your advice to other wives—"Tell him what is wrong and together you can work out a pattern of love-making that is mutually rewarding." I can't imagine anything more ego-shattering to a man than to be told he is a poor lover.

Help me, please Ann. I'm confused and unhappy.—Jennie

Dear Jennie: By your own admission, you've already told him—in language far more eloquent than words. And now you must be more explicit. He won't be hurt, he'll be grateful. A man who cares for his woman is teachable. (And if the shoe is on the other foot, boys, women are teachable, too.)

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a honor student and I work hard to get good grades. Some kids are just naturally brainy but I'm a pluggger, not a genius.

Last year I was begged by at least ten friends who wanted

Law For Today

Q. I'm a respectable grandmother who wanted to take two women visiting from out-of-town to have cocktails at a night spot with a great view of the city. We couldn't get in, though, since we were not escorted by a male companion. Isn't this kind of discrimination against the law?

A. It is. An establishment with a liquor license that is open to the public may not deny any person who is legally entitled to drink "the full and equal enjoyment of the accommodations, advantages, facilities and privileges of the premises." A woman as well as a man has the right to drink if she is 21 years of age or older, not intoxicated and not known to be a "habitual drunkard, spendthrift, insane, mentally ill, mentally deficient or in need of mental treatment."

Religion Today

By STRATFORD C. JONES

Associated Press Writer

MEXICO CITY (AP)

In 1531, the Virgin of Guadalupe

reportedly appeared on a hilltop before an Indian peasant, telling him to pass on to the bishop of Mexico her request that a sanctuary be built upon the site.

Now, centuries later, it is apparent that, for construction purposes, she could have chosen a better location.

The sanctuary, which originally was a small chapel at the foot of Tepeyac hill, since has grown to huge proportions and still is growing.

Its problem is that it rests on a slippery clay subsoil, and buildings are sinking at disproportionate rates. The Catholic Church and government are now engaged in a massive program to restore the complex, raise sinking buildings and make the site more beautiful.

Jose Cano, engineer in charge of the project which began six years ago, said he doesn't know when it will be finished. Original estimates set the cost at $1.6

million, but it is certain to be much more, Cano said.

The complex, located only about four miles from downtown

Mexico City, ranges over the foot of Tepeyac hill and up onto the hill itself. The government of the federal district—Mexico

City—and the Banco Nacional

de Mexico are working to clear the grounds around the shrine of decrepit dwellings and vendors'

stalls, replacing them with hillside gardens, parking areas and roads from which the shrine can better be seen.

While work continues, an estimated 15,000 daily visit the shrine, many traversing its huge courtyard on their knees.

On Dec. 12, Day of the Virgin, more than one million devout visit the shrine.

The first restoration to be all but completed is that of the chapel of the pool, built over a sulphurous spring near which the Virgin is reported to have appeared to the Indian Juan

Diego for the fourth time.

In 1963, when restoration got under way, one side of the building was 1.86 meters lower than the other.

The original chapel of Tepe-yac is being restored now, but will require much work. Part of its walls and foundations still stand and will be reinforced after excavation beneath it, where Juan Diego and others were said to have been buried, is completed by archaeologists.

Next to the basilica, begun in 1691 and finished in 1709, stands the convent of the Capuchin Order, erected between 1780 and 1789. Its rear to the north rests on bedrock of the hill of Tepe-yac, while its southerly front is sinking. Its eastern side also has sunk markedly, giving it a definite east-west list, when viewed beside the basilica, the western end of which has sunk.

The cant of the basilica will not be tampered with because of the excessive cost, said Cano.

Instead, the engineers are trying to prevent it sinking any more.

It is in the basilica where what the religious consider proof of the apparition is displayed.

There, above the altar, is a robe in which the Virgin put roses for Juan Diego to carry to the bishop as proof she had appeared. When Juan Diego

opened his bundle robe before the bishop of Mexico, Fray Juan de Zumarraga, the roses fell out and on the surface of the robe remained a brilliantly colored image of the Virgin. The pigments to this day have not faded—nor been identified.

Although Vasco Balboa, the Spanish navigator, discovered

the Pacific Ocean, Ferdinand

Magellan, the Portuguese navigator, gave it its name.

European telephone directories often print a suggested guide for phonetic spelling. In Spain, for example, it is "C" as in Carmen; in France, "M" as in Mimi; and in Germany, "O" as in Oskar. Spelling phonetically is more complicated in India where the phone book suggests "A" as in Allahabad and "M" as in Mahabalipuram.

Ghana, formerly called the Gold Coast, is named after a mighty empire that flourished 800 years before Europeans explored tropical Africa. Although the nation is not situated within the borders of ancient Ghana, tribesmen trace their ancestry to refugees who were driven to the coast by 9th-century Moslem invaders.

Although Vasco Balboa, the Spanish navigator, discovered the Pacific Ocean, Ferdinand Magellan, the Portuguese navigator, gave it its name.

A "Perfect" Rose

Look closely at a so-called perfect rose! Scan the petals; you will find they are far from perfect. But uneven shapes, blemishes or misshapen stems will not spoil the delicate color, rich fragrance and sheer beauty of the total flower.

How clearly a rose illustrates that nothing in life is truly perfect! But, rather than discourage us, this should give us fresh confidence and strength.

God did not make the rose perfect—nor did He make us perfect. Yet He thinks none the less of us for our faults and blemishes. In His eyes we always have another chance. But it is up to us to take it.

Start by going to the church of your choice next Sunday.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Vital to Learn Cause
Of Fainting Spells

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D. min B-12 shots twice a week.

Q—I am a housewife, 56. About once a month I feel faint for three or four minutes. This may happen several times a day. Some of my friends have this, too. What could cause it?

A—Feeling faint is the result of insufficient blood reaching your brain. This may be caused by getting up suddenly from lying down, especially in persons whose circulation is poor; emotional upsets, or prolonged standing in one position, especially in a warm room or in the sun.

When you feel faint you should lie down at once, or sit down and put your head between your knees to prevent passing out and falling. If you do lose consciousness with any of these attacks, you should have a thorough examination to determine the cause.

In some persons, brief fainting spells are due to a condition known as spasmodic in which the motor nerves are abnormally sensitive to various stimuli. When this is the cause, treatment with calcium and vitamin D is the cure.

Q—One day I fainted at work. My doctor says I have low blood pressure and poor circulation. I take Livitamin daily and vita-

Nader's Secret Weapon

By MARY ELLEN RIDDLE

NEA Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) — Bureauers respond to a visit from Ralph Nader or one of his associates with pleasure, excitement, or a nervous stomach, but never with nonchalance.

Nader, a free-lance crusader for consumer protection and government efficiency, started out as a loner. He still works alone but he has gathered an entourage of lawyers and college students who share his sense of mission.

The students—90 from all over the country—work under the direction of four lawyers and a Ph.D. in political science at the Center for Study of Responsive Law in Washington. The center is in one of those Victorian mansions that characterize Washington's older neighborhoods. Its turrets and gingerbread could come from a gothic novel, alone on a heath and inhabited by mad scientists.

But inside the atmosphere is dynamic. Offices are antiseptically white and sparsely furnished.

Nader has no office at the center. Despite the publicity surrounding his work, he managed to keep the location of his home and office, and his telephone number a secret. He is the chairman of the board of the Center but his job is that of an adviser.

Nader and his "raiders" seem to be able to locate information that most people don't even know is available. They often surprise the people and agencies they are investigating. Armed with relevant but obscure facts, Nader often seems to know everything and be everywhere at once.

James Turner, one of the five young men who are coordinating the work at the center, says most of the information Nader publicizes would be available to anyone who looked for it.

"The things Ralph has been talking about for the last four or five years are things people have been talking about in their homes for 20 years," Turner said.

"There's always some little guy stuck away in some little office who has been putting information together on things we're interested in for years," Turner explained. "He thinks nobody cares about his work so when one of us comes in and says 'I want to see your statistics,' he says, 'Wow.' He's dying to tell someone."

Turner, a June graduate of the University of Ohio Law School, is digging into the Food and Drug Administration for facts about man's "chemical environment." He says the life expectancy of a person who reaches the age of 40 is only four years more than it was at the turn of the century although the total life expectancy is longer because of a much lower infant mortality rate.

He blames the small increase in the length of a man's life after 40 on the chemicals he eats, drinks and breathes. He is looking for chemicals which have the official FDA stamp of approval but may be harmful. He believes he has already found one, cyclamates, the artificial sweeteners used in diet drinks.

Harrison Welford, the only nonlawyer at the center and its executive director, is studying the Department of Agriculture. He said the response from the department has not been good.

"I don't understand their reaction," he said. One girl who was sent to get some routine information about bacterial levels in poultry was required to show identification to prove she was a member of the Nader-inspired task force. Since she had none, her questions were not answered.

"That information should be available to everyone," Welford said. "I spend 95 per cent of my time haggling with USDA about what the public has a right to know."

Gary Sellers, a lawyer with four years of inside experience dealing with the government in the Bureau of the Budget, was disenchanted with the government lack of responsiveness to public interests. He is investigating occupational health and safety.

The other two young lawyers, Reuben Robertson and John Esposito, are putting together a handbook which will explain how people can make their way through the red tape of government agencies to participate in decision-making.

The college students will leave Washington at the end of the summer but the work of the center will continue throughout the year. The five directors will compile and publish the information gathered over the summer. They hope to get enough money from the publications to support a similar student research program next summer.

Remove from heat and stir in vanilla.

Cool without stirring until mixture is lukewarm and temperature reaches 110 degrees on a candy thermometer. Fold in almonds. At once spread in a buttered jelly roll pan—15 by 10 by 1 inch. Cut into bars. Makes about 1 1/4 pounds.

Drifting Barges Create Watery Traffic Jam

BEARDSTOWN — Elmer Logsdon and his "switch boat" the Elco were "called to the rescue" about 1 a.m. Wednesday to "corral" a number of barges which broke loose from a tow heading through the C. B. and Q. Railroad bridge draw.

The towboat Thompson, headed upstream with a long string of barges carrying a variety of freight, got involved with the current in the sharp curve in the river in the bridge area.

In the mixup at the bridge, lashings broke on the barges and a number of them were loose in the river while others went aground on a nearby island.

A traffic jam resulted with "barges loose all over the river," according to one witness.

Logsdon was still busy with the Elco Wednesday morning "herding" the loaded barges into his fleet area near the north end of Main and Adams street. Later the tow was switched into shape again so the Thompson could get under way.

It was said that several other towboats headed both up and downstream were delayed while the loose barges were pulled to safety.

Experimental College To Be Opened Soon

CHICAGO (AP) — The Illinois Junior College Board decided Friday that no tuition will be charged — at the start at least — at a new experimental junior college in East St. Louis.

The reason mentioned was the high percentage of unemployment among young people in that area.

The board tentatively set Oct. 25 as the date for election of members of the board of the emerging school — called the Community College of East St. Louis.

Omission of tuition will apply only to students who reside in the district.

The board also decided to hire Dr. Rosetta Wheaton and Dr. Jefferson H. Ware immediately as assistants to the executive secretary of the state board, Gerald W. Smith.

Dr. Wheaton, who has served as secretary to the executive secretary to the East St. Louis Junior College Committee, will receive $15,000 a year.

Dr. Ware, executive director of Southern Illinois University's center in East St. Louis, will be paid $17,200 a year.

Presumably, they will concentrate their work on East St. Louis.

The state board — which founded the new school — formally established the college's district.

It decided to accept the lease — now held by Southern Illinois University — for the Illinois Building, the Bensinger Building and the former Illinois Club for use by the new school. Acceptance is subject to approval by legal counsel. The rent is $96,000 a year.

The state board decided too to start "a program of studies" at the East St. Louis school by Sept. 24. The courses will be filled in later.

The board approved the purchase of a site for Spoon River College in the Canton area. The site is in the northeastern quarter of the district, but not far from its geographic center.

Harry Elliott of Havana, which is in the southeastern section of the district, asked the board for a central location.

"We feel we're not getting a fair shake," he said.

Harold Bishop, president of existing Canton College, said the philosophy of proponents of the proposed site was that any locality that was unhappy about it should not be part of the district.

Executive Secretary Smith said the state board's staff supports the proposed site.

Birmingham Man Shoots Four, Kills Self

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A man shot and killed four persons, wounded another, then shot himself to death Friday as scores of policemen surrounded a suburban Birmingham home, authorities said.

First reports from the scene, according to Mayor George Seibels, indicated the man had been shooting at passing motorists.

However, a report from the sheriff's office said it appeared more likely the dead were members of the man's family and a preacher.

The dead and wounded were not identified.

Deputy Sheriff H. H. Brooks said the house is located off U.S. Highway 11, about five miles west of Birmingham. He said three bodies were found in the front yard, two others in the back.

The man held police at bay outside the home for about 45 minutes.

A news photographer at the scene said the house is about 300 yards from the highway and the highway is not visible from the house.

MOUNTED POLICEMEN RIDES IN WATER
MILTON, Mass. (AP) — For the second time in his career, mounted policeman William J. Scannel rode into a pond and dove off his horse to try to rescue a young swimmer in trouble. This time he saved a life.

The 40-year-old officer's action Thursday enabled him to reach Edwin Holmes, 17, of Dedham, who went under while trying to swim across a 250-foot cove in Houghton's Pond in Blue Hills Reservation.

Scannel, a father of four who lives in Canton, made his first such rescue attempt in the same pond in 1965, but was too late to save the 16-year-old boy he pulled out of the water.

Sen. Smith

That session produced an alliance. Mrs. Smith would propose a second amendment, designed to bar any Safeguard spending, but permitting the Pentagon to go ahead with efforts to invent a better system.

Back on the floor, the Senate voted 89 to 11 against Mrs. Smith's Safeguard ban, argued some more, then got her second proposal.

By that time, the ABM sponsors had cooled toward Mrs. Smith.

"This is tragic," said Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss.

There was talk of a move to prevent consideration of the new Smith amendment on grounds it was a little different from the first one. There were huddles between Stennis, Republicans John Tower of Texas and Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

Even as the debate wore on, critics of Safeguard knew their cause was lost.

"What it comes down to is that we're working like hell to lose 50-50 instead of 51-49," said a Democratic aide.

"What it came down to was that ABM foes lost both ways. The first roll call, on Mrs. Smith's proposal, was beaten on a tie vote. It takes a Senate majority to approve an amendment. Actually, the final count was 51 to 50, since Vice President Spiro T. Agnew cast a symbolic tie-breaking vote for the administration position.

Then came the vote on the amendment to prevent deployment, and Mrs. Smith switched sides.

"I've been against the ABM system from the beginning," she said.

So her final vote was against spending any money for Safeguard research—even though it put her on the side of senators who want both that and deployment.

These hearings won't start until after Congress returns Sept. 3 from its summer recess, and the committee work may run almost two months.

Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., has promised to try to complete committee action by Oct. 31.

The bill passed Thursday by the House was the most thorough tax code revision in a generation.

It tightens the law in 27 different areas to produce ultimately $6.8 billion in additional revenue and would provide eventual tax relief calculated at $9.2 billion for all but the highest income brackets.

By 1972, the bill's sponsors say, a family of four making $3,500 and taxed $70 would pay no tax; one receiving $7,500 would pay about $110 less than at present.

The greatest proportionate savings would be at the low end of the income scale and for widows, widowers and single persons 35 and older.

The revenue-increasing provisions include repeal of the 7 per cent investment credit, trimming the oil depletion allowance from 27½ per cent to 20 per cent, reduction of other tax advantages for the petroleum industry, and abolition of the fast method of real estate depreciation except for residential buildings.

Most of the 30 adverse votes in the House were from oil and other mineral producing states. Predictions were that the reforms might be cut back sharply in the Senate committee.

Long has promised to try to keep the full 27½ per cent depreciation allowance.

But any reforms deleted in committee could be restored on the Senate floor—especially since the Democratic leadership is on record for them—or later in the conference with the House.

Tax Reform Faces Cautious Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House gave its huge tax reform and relief bill a big sendoff by passing the measure 394-30, but the legislation was destined for a cautious reception in the Senate.

The Senate Finance Committee will give the bill a careful going over and plans to hear more than 100 witnesses, largely speaking for interests which face higher taxes if it becomes law.

France Devalues In Face Of Crisis

PARIS (AP) — Facing the threat of bankruptcy, France devalued the franc by 12½ per cent Friday in a bid for more business and stability.

The government said France had been losing its monetary reserves at such a swift rate—$500 million a month in the second half of 1968 and $200 million a month this year—that these could vanish by the end of 1969 unless it acted.

President Georges Pompidou said the only alternative to devaluation was brutal deflation bringing massive unemployment.

The immediate result makes French goods cheaper in world trade, and visits to France more attractive for foreigners, but the over-all effect may be to bring other nations' currencies under new attack when trading resumes Monday.

France had $6.7 billion in reserves before the destructive strikes and riots last year and the wage increases that followed. These are down now to $3.5 billion—or less, by some reckonings.

The minister of economics and finance, Valéry Giscard d'Estaing, said that since last year's upheavals the franc has been considered internationally to be worth less than its official value. Thus it was necessary to realign French money.

Until now the franc has been worth 20 U.S. cents in international exchange. Effective Monday it will be worth about 17½ cents.

The dollar becomes officially equivalent to 5.55419 francs instead of 4.96706.

The U.S. Treasury said the devaluation was an adjustment to economic developments in France and will not affect the strength of the U.S. dollar.

NEW YORK (AP) — Some questions, observations and comments about the state of the American economy, especially as they relate to ordinary consumers and their quest for financial security:

Something Is Wrong

Despite the classic beauty of the Nixon administration's anti-inflation program isn't it badly off target when among the first effects to be felt are a decline in housing construction and a curtailment of student loans?

Because of an eight-month-old squeeze on the supply of money, home mortgage rates are now up to 7 1/2 per cent on average. Moreover, many requests for loans simply are turned down no matter how sound the borrower's finances.

The net result is that housing starts are down to around 1.4 million units a year, or hundreds of thousands of units fewer than are needed. In addition, at least one-third of the units are in large apartment houses.

The one bright aspect of the housing picture is that in some areas the steep rise in prices has slowed. In fact, if you check with real estate brokers you'll find that the price tags on some houses have dropped in recent weeks.

The banks can charge only 7 per cent on government backed loans, while the basic lending rate to the best customers is 8.5 per cent.

Unless quick action is taken in the House of Representatives to improve the return to banks, as many as 200,000 students might be turned down in seeking loans for the fall semester.

The Mystery of Meat Prices
So far this year the average retail price of meat has risen more than 9 per cent. Since meats account for 25 to 30 per cent of the average grocery bill, it is obvious that this increase is doing to food budgets.

But why should meat prices rise so sharply when the supplies of meat are abundant? In the past, price increases generally were associated with a shortage of supplies. But there's no great shortage today.

The American Meat Institute, a producer's organization, claims that the only possible answer is a big increase in demand for meats, resulting partially from consumer prosperity. If so, that demand was indeed very sudden.

Has Detroit Misread The Consumer?

Some of the cleverest marketing brains are employed by General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors. Using electronic and mathematical studies, they seemingly can read the brainwaves, desires, aspirations of ordinary Americans.

It appears that way from the reports, that is. The hard statistics show a different result. Americans, for example, continue to buy foreign cars in numbers that Detroit would never have believed a few years ago.

Last year more than a million imports were sold in the United States, giving foreign cars 10.7 per cent of the market. This year they've pushed that figure to 12.7 per cent. Foreign car sales rose in July; domestic sales were down.

Overkill
Although the anti-inflation policy of the Federal Reserve and the Nixon administration is just now showing some long delayed effects, a few economists already fear the measures have gone too far.

The chief weapon in curbing inflation is restricting the flow of money to the economy. Its effects aren't really felt until months after the action and sometimes cannot be forecast accurately.

These worried economists fear that present actions are going to bring a very pronounced slowdown—even a recession—in a few months and that, therefore, the money spigots should be opened a bit right now.

They recall that similar measures were taken against the inflation of 1957-58, resulting in the steepest recession since the 1930s.

Ignition Cutout Foils Car Thieves

By CARLTON SMITH and RICHARD PUTNAM PRATT
(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

By the time you've finished reading this column, 11 car owners won't have a car any longer. Autos were stolen at the rate of 103 an hour last year. The figure is going higher this year.

The chances of your waking up in the morning to find your car gone—two-thirds of all thefts occur at night—are getting better by the month. But there are two things you can do that will make it pretty close to a certainty that your car won't be among the 900,000 that, at present theft rates, will disappear this year.

One of these anti-theft measures doesn't cost you anything. The other is a gadget that sells for about $2.50. One of the country's top experts on the ways of car thieves assures us that it works.

"Not 100 per cent, because nothing can make it absolutely impossible for a determined thief to steal a car, if he is given enough time," says Don Armstrong, manager of the National Automobile Theft Bureau's eastern division. But, he points out, if you can make stealing your car a long, hard job, it's 99 per cent or better (theftproof). "A thief can't afford to spend much time breaking in and getting away. If it isn't a quick job, he'll move on pretty fast."

What's "quick" to a car thief? "One who knows his business needs only 15 or 20 seconds to open a locked car," says Armstrong. And it will take him about the same length of time to silence an alarm, if he hasn't already bypassed it. Much more effective than an alarm, in Armstrong's experience, is the electronic ignition cutout.

A cutout, though it uses no electric current itself, when in the "on" position, electronically kills off the ignition system. The "jumper" used by auto thieves to bypass the ignition lock will no longer work. So long as the cutout is operating, a thief would have not only to rewire the ignition system to get a car started but strip out the old wiring as well.

A former executive of the National Auto Theft Bureau, Ray King, told us he'd had a cutout on his own car since they first came on the market and had frequently invited experts in car thievery to try "stealing" his car—with a little side bet to make it interesting. He had never, he said, had to pay off.

Cutouts come in a wide range of prices, from around $40 to $50 installed down to the $2.50 do-it-yourself device we came across. The more elaborate ones have to be turned off with a keylock or a complicated plug-in. The inexpensive gadget is simply an on-off switch; its effectiveness depends on your hiding it well enough to make the in-a-hurry thief give up after a few minutes.

As for the anti-theft device that doesn't cost you a thing, it's merely the habit of locking your car and pocketing the key. About 80 per cent of all cars stolen were conveniently left unlocked, and even more generously, nearly half of them with the key in the ignition.

That still leaves 20 per cent of the cars securely (their owners thought) locked up—a good argument for a gadget that's about 99 per cent effective in foiling even a professional, who finds it so easy to open your car.

Volume was 8.77 million shares—the lowest since July 18 when 8.60 million shares changed hands—compared with 9.46 million Thursday.

The Associated Press 60-stock average closed off 8 at 292.2, with industrials off 1.6, rails off 1.1, and utilities off 4.

Trading on the American Stock Exchange totaled 2.61 million shares compared with 3.08 million Thursday. A spokesman said the turnover for the 4 1/2-hour session was the lowest since 2.59 million shares changed hands in a 5 1/2-hour session March 26, 1968.

There were 10 blocks of 10,000 shares or more traded, compared with 8 Thursday. The Amex index gained 1 cent to 226.33. Of 1,005 issues traded, 407 declined and 367 advanced.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — Turning in another sluggish performance, the stock market drifted indecisively through much of Friday's session before closing with a small loss.

The Dow Jones Industrial average lost slightly more than a point in the first half hour, turned and moved fractionally ahead at noon, then settled lower again to close off 1.81 at 824.46. The Dow gained 0.39 Thursday.

Gains moved into a small early lead over declines, but the situation was reversed later. Of 1,539 issues traded, 632 declined and 626 advanced. There were 7 new highs for the year and 64 new lows.

Goodyear Tire & Rubber was the most-active issue on the New York Stock Exchange, off 1 1/4 at 26 1/4. A 724,700 share block of Goodyear traded near the close. A spokesman said it was the second-largest block in number of shares to trade on the exchange this year.

There were 39 blocks of 10,000 shares or more traded, compared with 53 Thursday. Analysts attributed the market's lackluster performance to "preweekend caution, with some investors waiting to hear what President Nixon will say in his Friday night address, as well as waiting to see what the market will do now that it seems to be consolidating after a rally."

Volume was 8.77 million shares—the lowest since July 18 when 8.60 million shares changed hands—compared with 9.46 million Thursday.

The Associated Press 60-stock average closed off 8 at 292.2, with industrials off 1.6, rails off 1.1, and utilities off 4.

Stone Age Tribe With Odd Feet

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — A primitive African tribe, not far removed from the Stone Age, lives in the wildest and most remote part of the Zambezi Valley.

The tribe has many strange characteristics, but none so peculiar as their feet. Many of them have only two toes, shaped like lobster claws and set at an angle of about 90 degrees.

Only rarely have members of the Vadam tribe seen a white man. They live in the Zambezi Valley where it runs from Rhodesia into the Portuguese east African territory of Mozambique.

One of the few white men to have had contact with them is a Portuguese scientist, Professor Dos Santos.

In 1947 Dos Santos wrote a paper saying the two-toed feet were hereditary, and that the Vadam are quite happy with their deformity. In the wild bush country where they live they can run and climb trees faster than any of their five-toed brothers.

Only about one in four of the Rhodesian tribesmen have syndactyly or "lobster feet." The condition is more common in the Mozambique section of the tribe.

Reports of the tribe filtered out of the Zambezi Valley since explorers first probed the region, but only in recent years have comparatively authentic reports come in.

Later this year a Rhodesian expedition hopes to seek out the

Unmanned Ship

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union has launched another unmanned spaceship, Zond 7, to photograph the moon and test improved systems incorporated in rocket-space equipment, the official news agency Tass announced today.

The Zond series has been used in the past for deeper space probes beyond the moon.

The announcement by Tass made clear that new equipment was on board but gave no other indication of the purpose of the flight.

Tass said Zond 7 was first put into orbit around the earth and then set on a course toward the moon. The trip normally takes 3 1/2 days.

The announcement said stable communications was being maintained and all systems on board were functioning normally.

Army Says Germ Genocide Impossible

By TOM TIEDE
NEA Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA)—There have been recent reports that the world's major military powers have now developed enough chemical and biological weapons to kill every man, woman and child on the globe.

The reports are apparently accurate—but not very likely. According to officials closest to the United States "gas" warfare program, stockpiles of present deadly chemical and bacterial agents could wipe out the world's population only if everyone—all 3.5 billion of us—were lined up and carefully exposed to correct lethal amounts.

And this, say the officials, is impossible. "The statistical possibility of germ genocide may make a good news story," says one Defense Department authority, "but that's all it is—a story, a bonic plague? Man, if I get simply put, stockpiles lethal,

No such danger actually exists, many more of these, I'll take by any stretch of the imagination."

Another officer adds this: "Really, I suppose that we could kill everybody in the world with household pesticides given a chance at reaching everybody with the right amount. As a matter of fact, if we positioned every foot on this planet over a piece of bathtub soap, we might destroy mankind that way."

The point made is clear: Military people feel the simmering national controversy over chemical arms is more emotional than anything else.

The Pentagon is getting "all kinds of nutty questions," says a junior officer in public relations. "Do we have evaporation gas? Do we use germs in Vietnam? Is Army testing poisoning the atmosphere with the bumonlethal and incendiary type weapons. The incendiaries (like napalm) are widely used because U.S. policy exempts them from the Geneva ban on gas warfare. The nonlethal chemicals, like tear gas and herbicides, are also widely used, because of the same U.S. policy.

As for the lethal CB weapons, the nation has two principal kinds: nerve agents (which kill by suffocation) and bacterial agents (plague, smallpox, tularemia). But none of these lethals has ever been deployed. Danger. Officials say the number of CB accidents, in the laboratories or in the atmosphere, are very few—and seldom fatal. "I've been in the program 26 years," says one specialist, "and I can only remember three deaths from CB using conventional weapons, research." The comparison is that more military people die on the nation's highways every day.

No one is minimizing the possible hazards of CB stockpiling—but there is considerable Pentagon urging for people to "look at the facts."

And the facts, as the Pentagon sees them, are these: Extent. The CB program, simply put, stockpiles lethal, day. And as for transportation of CB materials, the Pentagon insists "strictest precautions" are taken. Major cities are avoided. Decontamination crews are always ready. And, anyways, "there has never been an accidental discharge of chemical agents during shipment."

Need. Military officers say that Russia, as one potential enemy, has "five times the number of CB weapons that we do." They add that most other world military forces stockpile such arms also. The argument, then, as stated by a U.S. strategist, is this: "Suppose we were in a fight with somebody who used germs against us—like North Vietnam. In such a case, if we continued conventional weapons, we'd lose. So our only alternative would be to retaliate with the nation's highways every day.

weapons. And if we didn't have the germs, then we'd have to use the nukes—and that's something we never want to do if we have any other prerogative."

The military's full defense of CB stockpiling is, of course, much more extensive than these few points. But these, officials stress, are primary. "If we can just get these few points across to the public," says one authority, "maybe some of the complaining will quiet down. I just don't understand it. The whole thing has been blown out of proportion. You know, we don't even manufacture CB weapons any more—we stopped doing it last year. We're just keeping what we have, because that's what our job is—in case the nation ever needs it."

Other critics say he was money-mad and cite the funds he spent on restoring his mother's house in Corsica. Yet a writer like Andre Maurois states: "Never was there a man who had greater riches and appropriated them for himself."

The most serious and widespread critical argument is that he destroyed the ideals of the French Revolution. For French nationalists, Napoleon bled the country into a position which represented France's permanent loss of predominance in Europe.

Weeder's Guide

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newfeatures

If you reduce their hours of sunlight, many popular annuals, including zinnias, salvia, verbena and marigolds, become spindly and pallid. The blooms become smaller.

One exception is impatiens, which thrives in partial shade. A newer strain that does very well under such conditions is the 'Elfin' impatiens, a free-blooming, vigorous dwarf variety developed by Claude Hope of Costa Rica.

Impatiens like shady situations. They are native to semitropical forests and grow abundantly in Central America. The Germans call them fließende Liesel, or busy Lizzie.

Elfin bloom quite profusely. Because most plants grow leggy in shade, Hope bred a "super-dwarf" plant shape into Elfin. Their form somewhat develops the new mechanical harvesting tomato varieties popular in California agriculture. The developer says they are bred "determinant," meaning they do not tend to produce blooms sequentially or in series, but after the initial cluster is formed, they "break" at stem joints and produce several clusters of blooms simultaneously, to provide an elaborate show.

Elfin—little people of the woods—range in color from white through red-rose, orange and purple.

Little-Care Hedges

Some hedges require little care, but before planting, decide exactly what you need: A low border planting? A thorny barrier? A wind break? A tall hedge for privacy?

Good low hedges include certain barberries, boxwoods, cotoneasters, euonymus, ligustrum, physocarpus, ribes, spiraea, taxus or yew, and viburnums. Evergreens make a compact, dense, low-growing hedge.

Flowering hedges of moderate height include varieties of abelia, chaenomeles, hibiscus, hypericum, ligustrum, myrtus, nandina and philadelphus. Most of them need clipping but once a year.

For windbreaks there are acer, carpinus, iagis, juniperus, taxus, ligustrum, picea, tsuga or hemlock and others.

For more southern areas, varieties include cryptomeria, ilex, nerium, oleander, osmanthus and pittosporum.

In the same vein, there are many shrubs that need little attention. Some that produce striking color year after year, depending, of course, on the climate, are forsythia, viburnums, hibiscus, oleanders and poinsettias. Other fine shrubs are certain camellias, rhododendrons and azaleas.

Varieties with pleasing scents are daphne, magnolia, philadelphus, syringa, genista and skimmia.

Napoleon Going Strong In Paris

By JOHN VINOCUR
PARIS (AP) — Of all its warriors and unfurlers of the flag, France loves Napoleon best.

If some leftist historians call him an advance-model fascist, Frenchmen respond by buying books about him, pasting Napoleonic eagle decals on their car windshields, and dressing their kids in T-shirts that stare out with the head of Bonaparte.

Aug. 15 is the 200th anniversary of his birth, and the government is going ahead with plans to do his birthday imperially.

They were not quite so sure about it at first. To find out about how Frenchmen rate the emperor, the French Public Opinion Institute was commissioned to do a popularity poll on the man who bled the nation's manpower, left France smaller in size than when he seized power, and stripped its finances.

The institute reported back confidentially that on the basis of every 100 persons, 35 thought Napoleon was the greatest Frenchman ever. There was just no competition: Louis XIV had only five points and Joan of Arc and Charlemagne three. Because he is a contemporary, Charles de Gaulle was not included.

According to the poll, what Frenchmen found most admirable about Napoleon was his civil code that still remains the basis of French law. They said they liked his wars least.

"What the poll didn't say," according to a French television producer who had access to it, "is that the thing that Frenchmen really like about Napoleon is the glory, all that grandeur. That's the story."

Much like books on the Civil War in the United States, books on Napoleon have a readymade audience in France. Anything with a decent cover, says Roger Stephane, a writer, has a guaranteed sale of 30,000 copies.

Many are apparently bought as gifts. With titles like "Napoleon and Music," "The Embroidery of the Napoleonic Era" and "Napoleon at the Dining Table," they don't beg a reading and go well on end tables.

The serious work more often than not praises him as a remarkable figure in history and as the man who continued the French Revolution, at least until he became carried away with his notions of empire.

There is no open criticism at the large, successful Napoleon exhibition at the Grand Palais in Paris, where paintings and documents are displayed with the emperor's blue and white field tents, his redingotes, their shoulders girlishly narrow, and remarkable toilet, writing and mess kits, tooled in bone, silver and gold.

Most of the documents stress his intelligence, his good sense. One exhibit, addressed to his soldiers in Egypt, reads:

"Don't contradict the Mohammedans. Act toward them as we acted toward the Jews and the Italians; respect their mufitis and imams as you did the rabbis and bishops—protect all religious places as the Roman Legions did."

This is the Napoleon that the French admire. But his critics are particularly aggressive.

If they argue from a rightist or iconoclastic position it is often to say that Napoleon wasn't really French, and that his true loyalties were with his birthplace, the island of Corsica. His real attitude toward the French, they say, can be found in his di-

ROODHOUSE GROUP ATTENDS HOPKINS, SUBJECT WEDDING

ROODHOUSE—Relatives and friends from Roodhouse attended the wedding Aug. 2 of Sandra Kay Subject and Joseph Richard Hopkins, son of Mrs. Richard Hopkins and the late Mr. Hopkins. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Subject of Grayslake. The wedding took place at the Grayslake United Protestant Church.

Attending were Mrs. Richard Hopkins, Mr. and Mrs. Eben Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Logan, Frank Hopkins, all of Roodhouse. Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Hadden of Jacksonville also attended.

Roodhouse Notes

Rev. and Mrs. Robert Williams and son are vacationing in the Ozarks.

Mrs. George Wollermann has received word of the hospitalization for surgery of her nephew, Sidney M. Drake, Jr., San Bernardino, Calif. Mr. Drake's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Drake, Sr., Boca Raton, Fla., who are en route to Roodhouse, will leave here for California shortly after their arrival in this city. The younger Mr. Drake is well-known in Roodhouse where he used to spend his summers with his grandparents, the late Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Jolley.

No Full Protection

The harbor seal finds protection in New England waters but not in the Pacific, nor in Canadian Atlantic waters, where it has a bounty on its head for being a suspected carrier or transmitter of codworm.

First Gold Standard

The world's first gold standard probably began in Egypt in 3100 B.C. in the Code of Menes, when it was decreed that "one part of gold is equal to 2½ parts of silver in value," according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

When tides come twice a day, as on the Atlantic coast, the interval between high and low water is a little more than six hours.

The Boy Scouts organization was founded in England in 1907. Saudi Arabia has no true rivers.

Ill Will Wanes Toward Black Alabama Sheriff

TUSKEGEE, Ala. (AP) — Well into his second year as Alabama's only black sheriff, Lucius D. Amerson finds white hostility waning.

His biggest problems are those of most other law enforcement officers.

There was no disputed evidence of resentment in the white community of Macon County when he took office in January 1967. But Amerson—and some white leaders, too—say time and the sheriff's conduct have erased much of the ill will.

"The public attitude has really changed—it has changed tremendously," said Amerson, 35, "and this has helped destroy a lot of mythologies—the feeling that existed among Negroes as well as whites that a Negro sheriff couldn't get cooperation from the white community and from other law enforcement agencies."

When Amerson was elected, he proclaimed a policy of color-blind law enforcement in the county, where blacks outnumber whites 5-1. Negroes and whites alike would be arrested if they broke the law, he said. There would be no discrimination.

He has carried out that promise, says Editor Stan Jackson of the weekly Tuskegee News, "and the people respect him for it."

A former sheriff, Preston Hornsby—who is now probate judge of the county—says "I hear less talk of resentment every day." In fact, he adds "I just don't hear much talk at all."

A white businessman, speaking anonymously, finds the community "pretty well acquiesced" now; "I don't find any real resentment anymore."

Like many fellow officers, the powerfully built former Army MP says some recent court decisions are "detrimantal to effective law enforcement."

Like many Southern county officials, Amerson draws no salary. He lives on fees from making arrests and seeing subornas and other official papers. The county buys uniforms for the sheriff's force and pays the deputies. But the sheriff has to buy his own official cars, gasoline, tires—even guns.

The fee system should be abolished, the sheriff says, and law enforcement officers should be paid a salary commensurate with the "responsibility and dignity of the office."

"I can make a comfortable living the way it is," he explains, "but I have to hump to do it. It just isn't good when the amount of money a sheriff makes depends on how many people he puts in jail."

"I get a tax deduction on gasoline," he said, "but when I drive into a service station I have to pay the same price any other motorist does."

Amerson figures he could save money by going into the service station business. He could buy gas wholesale, sell it to himself at cost and still get the tax deduction.

"I've thought about doing it," he chuckled.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Duke Sims, given another chance when his pop foul was dropped, slammed a three-run homer in the first inning, sending the Cleveland Indians to a 7-4 victory over the Kansas City Royals Friday night.

After the Royals had taken a 2-0 lead on Joe Foy's seventh homer with a man on, the Indians took the lead for good in their half of the first.

Lou Klimchuck singled with one out against Wally Bunker, 6-9, took second on a wild pitch and Frank Baker singled him home with two out. Ken Harrelson walked and Sims popped to third baseman Paul Schaaf, who dropped the ball. Sims followed with his 12th homer of the season.

Harrelson, Sims and Russ Snyder singled for the decisive run in the third and the Indians added two more in the fifth.

Rodriguez' Hit Lets California Down Bosox, 7-6

BOSTON (AP) — Auerlio Rodriguez doubled in two runs in the ninth inning, bringing the California Angels from behind to a 7-6 victory over the Boston Red Sox Friday night.

The Angels trailed 6-5 entering the ninth when Jim Fregosi opened with a single off Lee Stange, 4-7. With one out, Bubba Morton walked and Rodriguez followed with his hit to left center.

Boston had rallied with four runs earlier to go ahead, with Carl Yastrzemski's 30th homer tying the game in the fifth. Reggie Smith followed with a single and George Scott doubled him home for a 6-5 lead.

The Red Sox scored three times in the fourth on doubles by Smith and Tony Conigliaro, a walk, an infield out and Gerry Moses' sacrifice fly.

A walk and singles by Jay Johnstone, Bill Voss and Sandy Alomar gave California two runs in the second, and three more in the third came on singles by Rich Reichardt, Fregosi, Voss, a hit batsman and a single by Tom Egan.

Hint Cage Merger

NEW YORK (AP) — Walter Kennedy, commissioner of the National Basketball Association, said Friday owners of the NBA and the American Basketball Association, have held discussions that "ultimately might lead to a merger."

The NBA head said that three owners of NBA and ABA teams met both Thursday night and Friday with attorneys representing both circuits.

As a result of these meetings, Kennedy said, he and James Gardner, president of the ABA and owner of the loop's Carolina Cougars, issued a joint statement.

The statement said, "Walter Kennedy, commissioner of the National Basketball Association, and James Gardner, president of the American Basketball Association, announced today that they and their attorneys have begun exploring the possibility of cooperative arrangements between the two basketball leagues."

"The form of such arrangements have not been agreed upon but it is hoped that they will be shaped to conform to the needs of the various cities in the leagues as well as to any applicable law."

Kennedy said the three owners who represented the NBA during the meetings were Ned Irish of the New York Knicks, Sam Schulman of Seattle and Richard Block of Phoenix. Kennedy said that Gardner, Ray Boe of the New York Nets and Joseph Gear of Dallas represented the ABA owners.

"As far as I'm concerned, there'll be nothing further done at this time," Kennedy said. "We're looking into it. We talked about several possibilities that ultimately might lead to a merger."

The NBA has teams in Atlanta, Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Detroit, Los Angeles, Milwaukee, New York, Philadelphia, Phoenix, San Diego, San Francisco and Seattle. The ABA is represented in Indiana, Kentucky, New York, New Orleans, Dallas, Los Angeles, Denver, Carolina, Pittsburgh, Miami, Fla. and Oakland. Minnesota moved to Pittsburgh and Houston to Carolina since the close of last season.

Braves Gain Split With 1-0 Decision

ATLANTA (AP) — Felipe Alou's bases-loaded single drove in the only run of the game in the 10th inning, giving the Atlanta Braves a 1-0 victory and a split of their twinned double-header against the New York Mets Friday night.

Jerry Koosman hurled the Mets to a 4-1 victory in the opener.

Ron Reed of the Braves and Gary Gentry of the Mets matched four-hit shutouts for the first nine innings of the nightcap.

Ron Taylor relieved Gentry at the start of the 10th, and the Braves broke through. Cleto Boyer opened with a single and was sacrificed to second. Tito Francona was intentionally walked and then Rico Carty delivered a pinch single to left but Boyer had to stop at third.

Then Alou cracked Atlanta's third hit of the inning through the drawn-in infield to score the run.

In the opening game, Koosman, 9-7, spaced seven hits well enough to shut out the Braves until Bob Tillman slammed his 11th home run of the season with nobody on and two out in the ninth.

New York broke open the game with three runs in the ninth.

APPROVE PRO USE OF BIG TEN TURFS
 MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. (AP) — The Big Ten approved Friday the use for National Football League games of the University of Minnesota's Memorial Stadium by the Minnesota Vikings Sunday, Oct. 5, and Northwestern University's Dyche Stadium by the Chicago Bears Sunday, Oct. 12.

The exception to the conference rule against use of campus facilities by pro sports teams was granted by the athletic directors, contingent upon baseball's Minnesota Twins being involved in an American League playoff and the Chicago Cubs reaching the World Series.

Namath And Unitas In Spotlight Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The spotlight will be on the glamor quarterbacks, headed by Joe Namath and Johnny Unitas, in a meaty 10-game pro football exhibition program Saturday night and Sunday.

Eight of the warmup contests will be played Saturday night. The two big ones match Baltimore's National Football League champions (1-0) against Oakland's Western American Football League kingpins (0-1) at Oakland, and the Super Bowl champion New York Jets (1-0) of the AFL against the NFL Cards (0-0) at St. Louis.

Other games on the Saturday card include: Detroit (N), 0-0, at Kansas City (A), 1-0; Chicago (N), 0-1, at Miami (A), 0-1; New York (N), 0-0, at Green Bay (N), 0-0; Denver (A), 0-0, at Minnesota (N), 1-0; Atlanta (N), 0-0, vs. Philadelphia (N), 0-0, at Portland, Ore., and New Orleans (N), 0-0, at San Diego (A), 0-1.

On Sunday, Cleveland (N), 0-0, takes on San Francisco (N), 0-0, at Seattle in a national television game (CBS, 6 p.m., EDT), and Boston (A), 0-0, opposes Cincinnati (A), 0-0, at Bowling Green, Ohio.

Namath, who played 3½ periods in the Jets' 26-24 squeeze over the College All-Stars last week is expected to play only the first half against the Cards. There will be plenty of excitement in that time because the Cards' front four linemen have tabbed him their pinup target for the day.

Veteran Babe Parilli will share the quarterback duties with Broadway Joe.

BROWNS RELEASE LOWE
 CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Browns released James Lowe, a pass receiver from Tuskegee Institute Friday.

These former champions are among those entered in the fifth annual JOURNAL COURIER Jacksonville City Tennis Tournament which opens next weekend. Top is Manny Velasco, the Men's singles winner the first two years of the meet. Middle is Bill Kaufmann, who replaced Velasco the past two tournaments. Bottom is defending Junior singles winner Willy Coultas. Deadline for entering the tournament is midnight, Sunday, Aug. 10.

Nevele Pride Strong Favorite At Roosevelt

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Nevele Pride goes Saturday night in the $50,000 American Trotting Championship at Roosevelt Raceway and if he doesn't win it will be the biggest upset of the year in harness racing.

The 4-year-old colt will be after an invitation to the $100,000 Roosevelt International Trot a week from Saturday. The bid automatically goes to the winner of the ATC, a 1¼-mile test.

Nevele Pride is in top shape, according to trainer-driver Stanley Dancer, and leaving from the No. 6 post should not impose too much difficulty.

Opposing Nevele Pride in the ATC will be Grandpa Jim, Sir Paffee, Snow Speed, Lady B. Fast, Earl Laird and Real Speed.

Howard's Honesty Gains Him Respect

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

When people stand next to Frank Howard they look up to him because his 250 pounds cover 6-foot-7 inches. He must be even a more awesome sight to pitchers because Ted Williams says he hits baseballs farther than anybody.

There are other things that make Hondo, the Jolly Giant of the Washington Senators, one of the most respected men in sports.

Hondo was to receive three more ovations, twice when he came to bat and once when he hit one of Steve Carlton's pitches for a tremendous home run, 440 feet into the upper reaches of center field.

But the fans should have seen Howard sitting half undressed beside his locker while mopping his face with a towel and explaining the error he made on Hank Aaron's fly ball in the top of the first inning.

Miller, Belfary Carry Houston To 6-2 Verdict

HOUSTON (AP) — Norm Miller and Curt Belfary each drove in two runs and Jim Wynn cracked his 26th homer, leading the Houston Astros past the Montreal Expos 5-2 Friday night.

The victory went to Don Wilson, 14-7, who left in the sixth inning with a soreness in his right arm. Wade Blasingame relieved and retired the 10 men he faced to break the Astros' four-game losing streak and extend Montreal's to four.

The Astros pinned the loss on Howie Reed, 6-3, with three runs in the first inning. Belfary walked with the bases loaded and Miller singled in two more. ## Grid Practices Start Aug. 20

CHICAGO — Football practice for members of the Illinois High School Association officially gets under way on Wednesday, August 20. Some schools will issue equipment and arrange to have players take their required physical examinations at an earlier date but under the rules of the Association, no school may organize or practice its team before the second Wednesday preceding Labor Day.

Players must have engaged in a minimum of ninety minutes of actual field practice on each of fourteen days preceding the first interschool game or scrimmage and no school may play its opening game earlier than Friday, September 12, this year.

These rules were adopted by the members of the Association for the protection of the players and to promote equality in competition among the schools. This fall approximately 525 high schools belonging to the IHSAA will participate in football.

Greenfield Gets New Grid Coach

GREENFIELD — Richard Tucker, 32, of Galesburg, has been hired as football coach at Greenfield High school to fill the vacancy of Thomas Holden, who resigned to accept a position as assistant coach at Central Michigan University in Mt. Pleasant, Mich.

Tucker received his Bachelor's Degree from the University of Missouri at Columbia in 1959 and Master's Degree from Knox College in Galesburg in 1961. He served as basketball coach at St. Ann, Mo., from 1961-1963 and coached football and basketball at Lombard School in Galesburg from 1963 to 1966.

From 1966 to 1968 he served as varsity football, basketball and track coach at Costa High school in Galesburg. He was also athletic director and taught physical education and health.

Tucker joined the staff of the Outboard Marine Corporation in Galesburg the past year in the engineering department before accepting the coaching position in Unit District 10.

Oakland Claims First But Yanks Gain A Split

NEW YORK (AP) — Left-hander Al Downing, going the distance for the first time this season, fired a four-hitter as the New York Yankees defeated Oakland 5-0 for a split of their Friday night doubleheader.

Larry Haney's tie-breaking double keyed a three-run 10th inning flurry that gave the Athletics a 5-3 victory in the twilight opener, ending New York's winning string at five games.

Downing, making his second 1969 start after a long siege of arm trouble, retired the first 12 batters he faced and allowed just three singles the rest of the way while squaring his season mark at 3-3.

In the first game, one-out singles by Rick Monday and Dick Green got the 10th-inning rally started against reliever Jack Aker, and Haney followed with a run-scoring double to snap a 2-2 tie. Winning pitcher Paul Lindblad's sacrifice fly and Bert Campaneris' RBI single completed the uprising against Lindy McDaniel.

Frank Fernandez homered off Lindblad, 7-2, in the bottom of the 10th.

Detroit Hangs On For 6-4 Win Over Minnesota

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit tagged Jim Kaat for five runs and nine hits in the first three innings, including solo homers by Ike Brown and Al Kaline, then hung on to beat the Minnesota Twins 6-4 Thursday night.

Coupled with Oakland's earlier victory over Cleveland, the setback sliced Minnesota's lead over the Athletics in the American League West to 1½ games. The teams are even in the loss column.

Don McMahon, the third Tiger pitcher, struck out pinch-hitter Chuck Manuel with the bases loaded in the eighth inning after the Twins scored their final run to make the score 5-4. That preserved the first major league victory of rookie Tom Timmerman, 1-1, who worked 4 2-3 innings in relief of starter Earl Wilson.

Consecutive singles in the first inning by Kaline, Willie Horton and Bill Freehan gave Detroit its first run. Then, in the second, Brown hit his second major league homer.

Kaline homered in the three-run third and the Tigers got their other runs when Horton, Freehan and Norm Cash singled for one run and Don Wert followed with an RBI double.

All the runs came off Kaat, whose record fell to 11-8. Rich Reese put the Twins back in the game in the fourth with a three-run homer, his 12th, and they scored again in the eighth on two-out singles by Reese—his fourth hit—John Roseboro and Cesar Tovar.

The Tigers got an insurance run in their half on a single by Wert, a sacrifice and Mickey Stanley's single.

Roodhouse Gets Trip To State

SPRINGFIELD — Roodhouse exploded for six runs in the first inning and coasted to a 13-2 romp over the Springfield Collegians and earned a trip to the state Class 'B' with a third place finish in the Regional Tournament Friday evening.

Roodhouse will meet host Murphysboro in the state tournament Aug. 21 at 8:30. Roodhouse is now 33-15 for the season.

Lyndell Winters slammed a two-run homer, Lyle Winters had a triple and Howard Conrod, Lloyd King, Bob Camden and Gordon Brannan had doubles in the winners' 14-hit splurge.

Lloyd King tossed a four-hitter in going the distance for the winners, moving his record to 22-7 on the year.

Moehling, Marti Tied For Front At Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Ed Moehling, taking a second stab at making a life on the pro tour, shot a second-round 69 Friday and tied Fred Marti for the half-way lead in the $100,000 Greater Milwaukee Open Golf Tournament.

Each had a 36-hole score of 141, three under par for two trips over the wind-blown 7,075-yard, par 72 North Shore Country Club course.

Marti, a 28-year-old Texan in his sixth year on the tour and still seeking his first victory, had a second-round 70.

One shot back of the pacesetters was rookie pro John Miller, who had a 74 for 142 and was tied with Steve Opperman, 73; England's Peter Townsend, the first round leader who went to a 75, and South African Allen Henning, 73.

Most of the top names in the game bypassed this event to practice for the PGA Championship next week.

Moehling has won only $166.67 this year. Miller has been a pro less than six months.

Gary Player was the only major name among the leaders. The little South African shot a 70 for 143 and was tied with five others.

Arnold Palmer rallied for a 71 and 147.

Athletes Drop Boycott Threat, But Blast AAU

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. track and field team lifted Friday night its threat of a boycott of the British United States meet next week, but team members served notice of their determination to revolutionize the Amateur Athletic Union.

"The Union is rotten right through," said one of the athletes' spokesmen at a meeting in their hotel, "and unless we change things, the Europeans will swamp us at the 1972 Olympics."

The noisy meeting was attended by most of the 125 athletes who are here to compete with Britain next Tuesday and Wednesday as part of a European tour.

Speaker after speaker charged that the Union system was making them second class citizens and liable to make them second class athletes, too.

The athletes are going to call a meeting next month in California of all interested parties, including former American Olympic champions and former officials to set out a plan of action.

The athletes' committee, which includes Californian hammer thrower George Frenn and 5,000-meter runner Gerry Lindgren, were drafting a letter to President Nixon.

The present trouble blew up at Augsburg, Germany, where the athletes complained about supposedly poor accommodation. But Frenn said that this dispute "was just the tip of the iceberg."

"The trouble is that once we get back to the States, we split up and can't organize anything. Here we are all together and united," he said.

Jesse Pardue, the president of the AAU, declined to comment on the views expressed at the meeting.

Sally Baby Wins Illinois State Fair Colt Stake

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Sally Baby, owned by Laurence Huff of Sullivan, Ind., and driven by Ken Hardway, defeated four other qualifiers Friday in the championship raceoff of the $25,375 Illinois State Fair colt stakes 3-year-old pace for fillies.

The bay mare had finished 2-1 in the second division of the stake and then out-raced second place Miss Elktide and third place Sanitary Sue down the stretch to win the raceoff in 2:04 4-5. Sally Baby, in winning the second heat of the second division, was clocked in 2:03 2-5, fastest trip of the event.

Miss Elktide, owned and driven by Claude Laurence of Laura, Ill., had won both heats of the first division, for a season record of 15 victories in 16 starts. Sanitary Sue, owned by Dean Butts of Decatur and driven by Ray Wagner, had won the first heat of the third division in 2:04, second fastest time of the event.

Miss Wabash, owned by Eleanor Knackmuhs of West Salem, was fourth in the raceoff and Lady Trip, which had beaten Sally Baby by a whisker in the first heat of the second division, was fifth. Raymond Tripp of Poplar Grove owns Lady Trip.

Lincoln Land Jill, owned by Lincoln Land Farm of Sherman, Ill., and driven by Jack Leonard, won both heats of the $25,375 filly stakes second division for 3-year-old trotters and then won by two lengths in the raceoff over Blue Time, owned by John Wilson of Fairfield and victor in both first division heats. Forli, owned by W. W. and Anna Allen of Prospect Heights, Ill., and driven by Dolf Beilich, won the $3,830 Illinois Col Stakes for 2-year-old pacers.

Over Flo, owned and driven by Dwayne Fletcher, was best in summary with 1-2 finishes to win the companion $3,440 2-year-old trot but Misty Ayres, co-owned and driven by Jerry Graham of Salem, turned in the fast time this year for a 2-year-old trotting filly in the second heat when clocked in 2:05 1-5. Misty Ayres was fifth in the first heat.

Saturday's schedule includes state fair colt stakes for aged trotters and pacers and 2-year-old filly trotters and pacers.

USTFF's Chief Calls AAU Inept In Track Field

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The President of the United States Track and Field federation called Friday for replacing the Amateur Athletic Union as the nation's representative in the International Amateur Athletic Federation.

"Inept management by AAU administration of the Russian-British Commonwealth meet with the United States in July in Los Angeles and the current dissatisfaction of American athletes abroad give ample evidence that the national and international competition can no longer be left in AAU hands," E. Wayne Cooley of Des Moines said.

The control, Cooley added, "should be put under those who truly represent the interest of athletes, coaches and institutions upon which the existence and the development of the sport depends."

Cooley, citing support of the United States Track Coaches Association, said the USTFF, long at war with the AAU, is ready to assume responsibility for international competition.

PUBLISHERS BIDDING FOR SOVIET WORK

NEW YORK (AP) — A literary agent says at least six American publishers are bidding for U.S. rights to "The Fire," by Soviet writer Anatoly V. Kuznetsov, who recently defected to the West in London.

Kuznetsov said he could no longer tolerate repression and censorship in his homeland and remarked that the Russian language version of the book, dealing with life in a metalworks town, differed greatly from his original manuscript.

"When Mr. Kuznetsov defected he had with him filmed copies of his works," the agent, Mrs. Lorella Valmery, said Thursday. His British publishers are having both versions of "The Fire" translated.

Orioles Continue Red-Hot Pace, 6-5

BALTIMORE (AP) — Dave Johnson capped a four-run rally in the ninth inning with a sacrifice fly and the Baltimore Orioles overcame Minnesota 6-5 Friday night for their fourth victory in a row.

Andy Etchebarren opened the ninth with a single off Al Worthington and one out later, Don Buford singled. When Paul Blair walked on four pitches, Ron Perranoski, 7-6, became the fourth Twins' pitcher.

Frank Robinson greeted him with a two-run single, Boog Powell followed with the tying single and, after Brooks Robinson was walked intentionally after the count went to 1-2, Johnson delivered.

The Twins broke a 1-1 tie in the sixth on run-scoring singles by Rich Reese and Graig Nettles, knocking out Tom Phoebus. Tony Oliva, who singled in the first Minnesota run in the third, hit his 15th homer in the eighth, and Cesar Tovar doubled in a run in the ninth.

Team Selections Confuse The Fan

By FRANK ECK

AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

If baseball fans throughout the country are confused over the method used in naming the greatest players in the game's history and the naming of the greatest living players they have plenty of company.

Former and present day players, club officials and many members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America are still wondering when and where signals were changed to name two teams instead of one.

The confusion started even before Willie Mays stepped up to receive a gold trophy as the "greatest living right fielder" at baseball's Gala Centennial dinner two nights before the All-Star game in Washington. An appropriate souvenir book listed eligibles as "greatest player" and "greatest living player."

"I only played right field two or three times in my life," Mays said in his acceptance speech. But Say Hey was thrilled to join a living outfield of Ted Williams in left field and Joe DiMaggio in center.

"Stan Musial on first base in a tie with George Sisler?" was a question asked by many. Stan the Man played 21 full seasons with the St. Louis Cardinals but only three of them as a full time first baseman.

Musial belonged in the outfield. So did Mickey Mantle. What's wrong with naming five outfielders?

Buzzie Bavasi, president of the San Diego Padres who broke in with the Dodger organization in 1939, says "I like to hear about the past, but we are all more concerned with the present and the future."

The June ballot from Dick Young, able president of the BBWAA, gave specific instructions on the selection of the All-Time All-Star team. Many veteran writers received no ballot for living members.

"To guide you in your selection," said the instructions, "you will find enclosed the eligibility list. This contains the names of players who have been elected by fans in each city to the greatest team for their franchise, plus all members of the Hall of Fame."

"The best time to vote on an All-Time team might have been after the World Series to eat into space devoted to football. "After all," said one official, "football has been eating sports page space during the baseball season with holdouts, retirements, signings and exhibitions."

"Maybe baseball ought to name the team of the decade in each league every 10 years," said another official.

It may never happen because it seems too logical.

"There is one specific guideline concerning outfielders: Vote for three best outfielders. Do NOT vote by specific outfield position: left, right or center. The outfield will be tabulated as one general category."

Of course, these instructions pertain to the All-Time team. Yet, Babe Ruth in right field, Ty Cobb in left field and DiMaggio in center field were named by position. Joe D actually replaced the great Tris Speaker on what had been regarded as baseball's greatest outfield.

DiMaggio also was named the greatest living center fielder and the greatest living player. We have no fault to find with Joe D receiving the finest triple crown ever awarded any athlete, but there are some who feel this is a promotional gimmick to keep Joe D in baseball. He is executive vice president and coach with Charley Finley's Oakland Athletics.

The dream teams picked truly contained great players of the past and present. There were some notable omissions as there are bound to be when people attempt to cover 100 years.

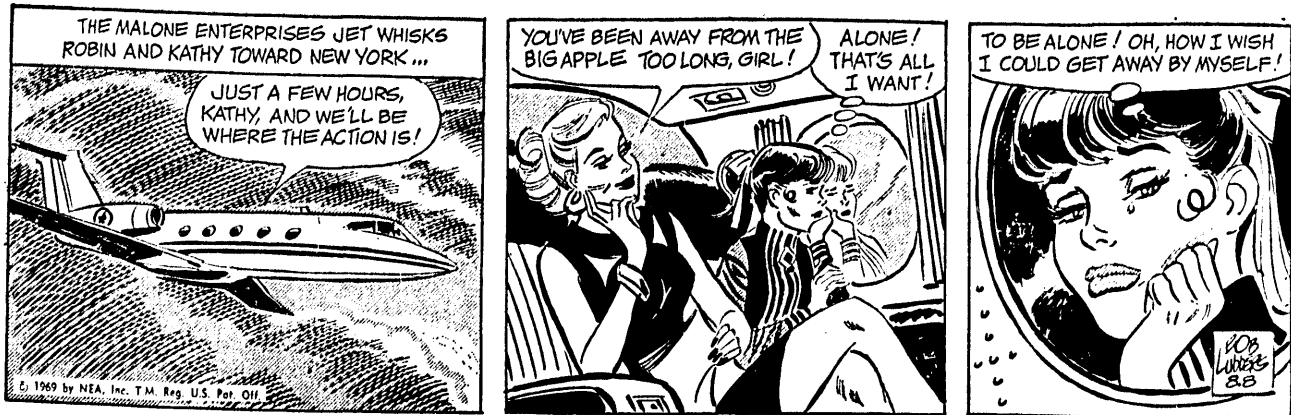

If the same people voted tomorrow such names as Bill Terry, Frankie Frisch, Eddie Collins among the old guard and Hank Aaron, Roberto Clemente and Carl Yastrzemski of the present certainly would rank high in any voting contest.

"I have the greatest respect for Casey Stengel," says Bavasi. "He and John McGraw were voted the greatest managers. But Walter Alton is the greatest manager ever brought

Scoey Mitchell Featured On Rodgers Show

Pianist Roger Williams and comedian Scoey Mitchell are guests on "Carol Burnett Presents the Jimmie Rodgers Show" starring Jimmie Rodgers, with Lyle Waggoner, Vicki Lawrence, Nancy Austin, Bill Fanning, Don Crichton and The Burgundy Street Singers Monday, Aug. 11, 9 to 10 p.m. in color on the CBS Television Network.

Scoey Mitchell

Rodgers sings "Dese Bones Gonna Rise Again," "The Wreck of the John B" and an original composition, "If I Were the Man." He chats with Williams in the "Americana Corner" and joins him in a whimsical piano duet of tunes ranging from boogie-woogie to "Clair de Lune."

Williams performs "Mini Minuet" for his piano solo and plays the "Love Theme from Romeo and Juliet," one of his hit recordings, for a romantic dance by Don Crichton and Vicki Lawrence.

Mitchell presents a comedy monologue and joins the cast in blackouts illustrating how "America Is...Pet Happy."

The cast salutes Des Moines, Iowa, hometown of Williams.

A comedy highlight features a pie-throwing free-for-all involving Nancy Austin, Bill Fanning and Vicki Lawrence. The Burgundy Street Singers give a contemporary sound to "It Ain't Necessarily So." The regulars revert to their childhood in the "overground movie" of the week, set in Mountain View Park, Burbank, a kiddie playground.

BUDDY EBSEN MAY BECOME SKIER

Buddy Ebsen, who stars as Jed Clampett on "The Beverly Hillbillies" on the CBS Television Network, may well add skiing to sailing as an active sports interest. He tried skiing last winter for the first time and liked it. "It was at Bear Valley in the High Sierra," Ebsen says. "I took my share of spills but still I liked it so much I may take it up in earnest next winter."

Merv Griffin's Night Talk Show Debuts Aug. 18

By JOAN CROSBY
NEA Entertainment Editor
NEW YORK (NEA) — When Merv Griffin moves bag, baggage, chairs and vocabulary to CBS-TV, where his late night talk show will debut on Aug. 18, time, setting and outlet will be different, but Merv and his show will be the same.
CBS and Merv agreed that it is best not to tamper with a good thing. So Arthur Treacher, fully recovered from a serious operation and illness; music director Mort Lindsey; producer Bob Shanks; and the whole production crew move along with Merv.

Merv Griffin

"The theater is breathtaking," Merv says, noting that the only changes are physical. "When CBS decides to spend money, they don't quit."

"The biggest thrill of all is that we will be taping the show just a few hours before it airs. We can actually talk of things that are happening. Before, taping one to two weeks in advance as we did, I had to do a non-descript monologue in which I mostly talked about the audience. And we had to put blocks in front of the guests by telling them not to mention dates."

Merv's show will be originaing from the Cort Theater. Merv has bought the four-story building next door and he will use three floors to house his offices. "Are you ready for what's going to be on the first floor?" he asks. "A restaurant called Pips Limited—Pips is Arthur Treacher's nickname—to be managed by Vincent Sardi. It's great to own a piece of New York."

As always, Merv will continue to present new faces. "The difference between our show and others has always been that we emphasize new faces or famous faces making their debut in the talk format, like the late Martin Luther King." Merv very seldom socializes with his guests, even though some of them are his good friends. "Every time I have tried it," he says, "the next appearance by that friend on my show has been a bomb. I never meet people before the show and I say a quick thank you and good-by after. I want it to happen—whether it's love or hate—on that stage in front of the audience."

BRODERICK CRAWFORD IN "GET SMART"

Oscar-owner Broderick Crawford will portray a character named C. Errol Madre in a "Get Smart" episode about the treasure of C. Errol Madre, filmed for broadcast next fall on the CBS Television Network. Series star Don Adams directed the script by Chris Hayward and Bob Devinney. The award-winning "Get Smart" series joins the Network's Friday night lineup September 26.

MERRY MEDLEY—Guest star Victor Borge (center) joins hosts Tony Sandler (right) and Ralph Young for a merry medley of tunes during the "Kraft Music Hall from London" colorcast 8-9 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 13 on Channel 20 and other NBC channels.

Success Story Starts With Milan Teamup

By JOAN CROSBY

NEA Entertainment Editor
NEW YORK (NEA) — They are not your usual show business personalities.

One of them rides the subway from his Forest Hills, N.Y., apartment house because "it's the most convenient way to get to the city." The other one refuses to give up the comfortable, but hardly elegant, Queens Village house where he and his wife have lived for many years. His wife is so unshow biz that she has yet to wear the mink stole her husband gave her recently.

They're Tony Sandler and Ralph Young and they sing. Tony has a Continental background, having been born in Belgium and first introduced to music when he sang in choirs. Ralph was born in the Bronx and his relatives thought he should become a cantor.

They met in, of all unlikely places, Milan, decided to become a team and today they're heading a dozen summer shows, filmed in London, on the Kraft Music Hall over NBC-TV.

Tony and Ralph are not only very good singers, with totally different voices (but they sing in the same keys), but they also have a joy of performing that communicates to audiences.

Their many Capitol albums are top sellers and they are big hits on the supper club circuit. The Kraft series is their first prolonged exposure on television and it should do even bigger things for the careers of these two very nice gentlemen.

The Milan meeting came about when a group of singers and dancers went there to rehearse a show for the Dunes in Las Vegas.

"Ralph had never been to Europe before that," Tony recalls, "and I had never been to America."

They were club singers who sang while scantily clad girls paraded around, which meant they were practically invisible.

"They called us singing 'stars,'" Tony says, "but that meant nothing."

They decided to team up and four years ago began their joint career. Their personalities are completely different. Ralph is a warm, smiling, friendly, big man who can't quite believe all the good things happening to him. Tony is suave, polished, very continental. But they got on.

Have they ever worried about the pitfalls that await a pair of entertainers who hit it as a team, then get solo itches?

"We holed up for one solid year and if we didn't get to know each other during that time..." Ralph says, his voice trailing off.

"Clashes are a luxury no team can afford," Tony says. "We all have faults."

Tony's real name is Lucien Josep Santele, and he comes from a large family. At eight he was singing Gregorian chants. "Once when I was a little boy," he recalls, "I sang for both the bishop and the archbishop. But they talked while I was singing."

Ralph, who is several years Tony's senior, spent long years making a living out of his voice, but never achieving recognition until he became part of an "and."

"We're in an easy situation. We love what we're doing. People say to us that we seem to be having a lot of fun. We do have fun," Tony says.

Ralph smiles in agreement.

Perhaps the best idea of the way they affect the people they entertain came from the waiter serving them lunch at Sardi's, where every table is crowded with the great names in show business. The waiters are not awed or given to handing out compliments, but as dessert arrived, the waiter looked at Sandler and Young and said, "I think you're very good."

That kind of critical acclaim is sweeter than dessert.

celed. She says she was delighted.

She and her husband, movie producer-director Alan Pakula, went off and celebrated after NBC axed "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir." "I said, wonderful, I can join the human race again. I'll have time for gardening, swimming."

Miss Lange had been in and out of retirement since gaining stardom in 1957 in "Bus Stop" and "Peyton Place." It took some persuading to get her to come back for the series last year.

"I got so in the habit of not working," she said. "There are so many other things to do. When you're away it's like starting all over again."

"One reason I decided to do this show, besides liking the project, which was the real reason, was that many people were beginning to think I had retired," she said.

Miss Lange's elation over the cancellation was short-lived. "We were on a ship heading for the Caribbean when I heard ABC had picked us up. I went into a funk. But now I'm delighted."

Even so, she said she hopes the series doesn't last more than three or four years.

Besides switching networks, the series is moving to a new time period. It will be seen at 7:30 p.m. Thursdays, matched against CBS' top-rated "Family Affair" and NBC's "Daniel Boone."

Miss Lange, whose performance in the series brought her an Emmy, said, "I like comedy. It's more difficult. I'd always been a dramatic actress and I liked the idea of trying it."

"Playing comedy, just as your ownself, is tricky," she said. "It's particularly hard to do if you're tired. You've got to have that spark and spontaneity. Eventually, you find yourself instinctively knowing where the laugh is, and how to play up and down to it."

Cook County Sheriff Joe Woods: Flamboyance And Controversy

EDITOR'S NOTE—Joseph I. Woods is sheriff of Cook County—the Chicago area—in Illinois. It's a tough range for a law officer. In handling it, Sheriff Woods describes himself as "controversial, but always professional."

By MICHAEL S. HARRIS
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — He sometimes leads raids on gambling houses wearing a hand-me-down tuxedo from President Nixon and holding a pistol in his right hand.

He has tried—and failed—to form a posse of 1,000 volunteers to back up his small police force.

He has threatened to shoot and kill any person intentionally starting a riot.

He is Sheriff Joseph I. Woods of Cook County, 954 square miles of flamboyance and controvery.

Cook County, the second largest county in the nation, is filled with challenges, problems and tension for the man who is responsible for enforcing the rules.

But the 53-year-old Woods appears to be a match for it.

This is the man who sometimes attends a fancy reception wearing a tuxedo, and leaves early to lead a raid—without changing clothing. His sister, Rose Mary, is President Nixon's private secretary, and Woods has been the recipient for years of Nixon's suits. He still wears them, replete with the initials "RMN" on the lining.

Prior to the summer of 1968, Woods tried to organize a 1,000-man civilian force for riot control after his request for the hiring of 200-300 additional policemen for his force was turned down.

His plan for the half-white, half-Negro posse was beaten down by critics including civil rights leaders and politicians who labeled the proposed group "the vigilantes."

Woods was back in the news again recently when some 250 bailiffs and process servers employed by his department to bolster his approximately 250 regulars formed a volunteer riot-control force.

They outfitted themselves in khaki uniforms with black berets, scarves and paratrooper-type boots and nicknamed themselves the "Black Berets."

The men are being professionally trained and, according to Woods, would only be used as a last resort.

Woods stands a trim 6 feet and has a deep booming voice, insistent eyes and military bearing.

His face is lined and the thinning hair is graying a bit but his smile comes easily and often and he appears relaxed and confident.

The history of Woods is a study in contrasts.

Born and reared in Sebring, Ohio, Woods finished high school and spent 10 years studying for the Roman Catholic priesthood. With only three or four months to go Woods said he decided the priesthood was not for him.

Shortly after he left the seminary, Woods joined the Marines and spent four years in the service.

Then, Woods decided to go into the business of law enforcement.

"A friend of mine who was an FBI agent suggested I apply there," Woods said in an interview. "I applied in 1951 and was accepted. I had no law degree and no accounting degree but had studied canon law in the seminary. The rules of evidence are roughly the same, so I took the FBI legal test and passed."

"I resigned from the FBI in 1961 for 13 reasons—my wife, myself and the 11 children the Good Lord blessed us with," he said.

"I started my own business in Washington—the investigating business—then the Better Government Association of Chicago asked me to come here for an interview."

"In December of 1961 I had never seen Cook County before," he said. "In December of 1966 I was elected sheriff. Since then I've on occasion been controversial but always professional."

He fielded the question, "What made you run for sheriff of Cook County?" with a smile.

"I didn't want to," he commented. "The various factions of the Republican party came to me and, in effect, said: 'You've been giving speeches telling the citizens if you're not satisfied with the school board don't sit on the sidelines and criticize, run for it and change it.' Now they wanted to know am I going to put my reputation where my mouth was. They asked me to run for sheriff of Cook County."

He says he has never regretted his decision.

"It is a time-consuming job that, the way I work, takes me away from my children and family too much. I worked as an (FBI) agent the same way, so I would say that in law enforcement I'm pretty well dedicated to trying to get some answers to some questions," Woods said.

Woods is in an elected position—he's a Republican in a strongly Democratic county—and one in which he cannot succeed himself. What is his next objective?

"I haven't the vaguest idea yet. I've got a little over two years as sheriff. A lot of people have asked me what I'm going to run for next," he remarked.

"I didn't ask to run before. They now tell me they want me to run. I don't know yet."

However, there are indications that Woods is attempting to take the same route that boosted another Republican, Richard B. Ogilvie, into the Illinois governor's office.

Recent newspaper stories indicate that Woods is rounding up support for the Republican nomination for president of the Cook County Board of Commissioners.

Ogilvie started his political career as Cook County sheriff, then moved on to president of the board before winning the governorship.

The sheriff has been a headline maker for a number of years, but, unlike many fellow politicians, he has not had a good rapport with the press and it doesn't seem to bother him.

"I couldn't care less about the press," Woods said coldly. "For every editorial that papers put out about something where I'm trying to come up with an idea to protect people, such as in Oak Lawn where I issued an order to shoot looters last year... there were no looters... after that order, it just doesn't mean anything."

Woods called riots in the suburbs the biggest problem he and his department have faced. But, he smiled as he talked about the way they've handled the situations.

"We put down some of them so quickly that I suppose the press got upset. At Blue Island they didn't even get there before it was over... and that was black against white. And, it was only three days before the (Democratic national) convention."

"We've learned and tried to teach our men to work as a team. We try to move the leaders fast and in this way we hope to stop the riot before it really gets started."

Woods surveyed the large room, with its picture of President Nixon and his family on a nearby table and plaques adorning the walls.

The sheriff smiled, then said in a serious tone of voice:

"I can't do things to please everybody. So, whether somebody likes it or doesn't like it, I can't be swayed by that. I've got to—knowing that I'm a pro and I discuss it with the FBI and various other pros—I've got to discuss it and make my decision based on facts."

No Judge

The severity of winter cannot be judged by the manner in which a beaver builds its home. The character of the animal's dam is the direct result of the stage of the water at the time the structure was made.

Frost

If the moon is clear, the surface of the earth will cool rapidly by radiation and, if no wind exists and the temperature is low enough, frost may well form.

LONDON (AP) — A nine year study of 4,486 British widowers, all 55 years of age and older, has shown that grief can lead to death.

Within six months after their wives died, nearly five of each hundred surviving husbands dropped dead themselves. This death rate is 40 per cent higher than might reasonably be expected. The study revealed that many of the deaths were due to heart or circulatory impairments.

The study conducted by Dr. C. Murray Parkes suggests that bereavement can cause changes in "psycho-endocrine functions" due to the effect on the body of emotional stress. These changes can place an unbearable strain on some hearts.
